THE MICHIGAN LEGISLATURE.

Arrangements for Its Constitutional Convention Before the United States Supreme Court.

The Michigan law providing for the election of presidential electors by congressional electors, known as the Miner law, came up for consideration by the Supreme Court yesterday afternoon on arguments as to its constitutionality.

William McPherson and others, who are the republican electors, are seeking a mandamus to compel the secretary of state of Michigan to issue the notice of election under the old law.

The claim set forth by McPherson and others is that the Miner law is unconstitutional. The supreme court has refused to grant the writ, holding that the law is constitutional, and the petitioners carried the case up to the Supreme Court. Attorney General Miller is one of the counsel associated with H. M. Durfee, who is the attorney for the petitioners, who seek to overthrow the law.

State Attorney General A. A. Ellis and Otto Kirchner represent the state of Michigan.

It was contended by the petitioners that the law was void and non-effect for the reasons that it contravened the second clause, section 1 of article 2 of the Constitution; that it contravened and was repugnant to the fourteenth amendment to the Constitution; that it was a direct contravention to the act of Congress of February 3, 1887. In support of the first reason, it was contended that the law was void, inasmuch as it was a direct contravention to the act of Congress of February 3, 1887. In support of the second reason, it was contended that the law was repugnant to the fourteenth amendment to the Constitution. The third reason was based upon the variations from the act of February 3, 1887. First, the meeting of electors is fixed for the first Tuesday after the first Monday of the second Monday of January. Second, it makes it the duty of the secretary of state to prepare lists of electors and alternate electors and deliver them to the electors. Third, it makes it the duty of the secretary of state to prepare lists of electors and alternate electors and deliver them to the electors. Fourth, it makes it the duty of the secretary of state to prepare lists of electors and alternate electors and deliver them to the electors. Fifth, it makes it the duty of the secretary of state to prepare lists of electors and alternate electors and deliver them to the electors. Sixth, it makes it the duty of the secretary of state to prepare lists of electors and alternate electors and deliver them to the electors. Seventh, it makes it the duty of the secretary of state to prepare lists of electors and alternate electors and deliver them to the electors. Eighth, it makes it the duty of the secretary of state to prepare lists of electors and alternate electors and deliver them to the electors.
